TIME BOMBS

Men still living on the moral capital of yesterday can scarcely understand the moral bankruptcy of today nor the moral battle of tomorrow.

Idealists try to plan tomorrow's world on paper. Re-alistis know they'll have to build it out of people.

"I've been selfish all my life and never noticed it," said a school girl.

of Chinook and district gath-greatly regretted. For five

Warn Motorists Gas May Be Cut

Ottawa, June 12 (CP)— Munitions Minister Howe Friday warned Canada's motorists that war developments may at any time cause a reduction in the amount of gasoline available for civilian use and reiterated that Canada's synthetic rubber program means no relief of the civilian tire situation.

"Our petroleum situation is still very serious", Mr. Howe said in reviewing the operations of his department for the House of Commons.

"While the victory in Tunisia will mean the opening of the Mediterranean and relief for over-burdened shipping, an offensive, or several offensives in Europe would make heavy demands on our transportation facilities for the shipment of vast quantities of petroleum products."

Pilot Able To Help Sick Missionary In Lonely Arctic

Edmonton.—Airline officials disclosed how the faint crackle of a radio distress signal barley audible through the static of an Arctic summer night, brought help to a stricken missionary in the far north during the latter part of April.

The missionary, Father C. Adam, Oblate order priest with a parish along the lonely Arctic coast east of Coppermine, N.W.T., is now recovering in Fort Resolution hospital after being flown there by a Canadian Pacific Air Lines rescue plane.

Pilot Ernie Boffa and his mechanic, Thornton Tweed of Edmonton, were on a freighting trip at Yellowknife late in April when faint distress signals were received telling of Father Adam's illness at Burnside Harbor, Arctic outpost on Bathurst Inlet, 1,000 miles to the north.

Loading extra gasoline in their eight-passenger Norseman plane, Boffa and Tweed took off and had Father Adam in hospital at Fort Resolution, 150 miles south of Burnside Harbor, the next day.

She is the wife of Capt. R. B. Forbes, 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade, Canadian army overseas, and was formerly junior administration officer at Uplands. She was stationed at air force headquarters for a short time before being posted overseas. A brother, Pilot Officer J. C. Nixon, R.C.A.F., was killed overseas in 1941.

Garden Pests

Department Of Agriculture Suggests Ways Of Protecting Gardens And Plants

Cutworms are present in most gardens almost every year. These greyish-brown caterpillars feed at night, cutting off transplants and seedlings at the ground level. They hide in the soil during the day. The Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture suggests that in small gardens, plants can be protected by wrapping paper loosely around the stems or by placing tin cans, with top and bottom removed, over the transplants. Be sure that the lower end of either protector is embedded in the soil.

In larger gardens, where the area to be protected is more extensive, poisoned bran bait will have to be used. This bait is composed of five pounds of bran, three ounces of paris green and two quarts of water.

Before transplanting, the bait should be sprinkled lightly over the garden. This should be done in the evening, following a warm day. Two applications are recommended at an interval of three days. As this bait is poisonous it must not be left exposed in containers where it will be available to young children, livestock, or birds.

VERY EXPRESSIVE
Much that we admire in the English is symbolized by the way Winston Churchill pronounces the word "Nazi." In contrast to the careful, cultured, and somewhat respectful "Nazzy" of the radio announcers, his "Nazzy" is a simple snarl of derision, implying that it's impossible for a plain man to get the hang of any such foreign word and in this instance, certainly not worth the trouble.—The New Yorker.

Education In Canada

THE RECENT MEETINGS of the Canada-Newfoundland Education Association, held in Winnipeg, have brought before the public some of the problems connected with education in Canada at this time. Dr. W. P. Percival, of Quebec, was the chairman of a committee which made the first Dominion-wide survey ever conducted to study the most vital educational needs of Canada, and he presented the results of this survey during the conference. The main points included in the report were the recommendations that the capital expenses for schools be paid out of special funds and the cost of education be doubled; that all children be educated until their sixteenth year and that they should attend school during part of their seventeenth and eighteenth year; and finally, that the basic salary for teachers in Canada should be $1,321 a year, which is the present minimum in British Columbia.

Citizenship To Be Emphasized

The report also carried recommendations that in the future emphasis should be placed on principles of morality, and that the importance of worthy citizenship should be impressed in the schools. It also stressed the need for the training of pupils in useful crafts, as well as in academic subjects and the report stated that "the time has come when the call for more practical subjects has reached the irresistible stage." The war has affected education, as it has almost every aspect of our national life, and it has brought into prominence many problems, some of which are being dealt with now, and others which are being studied in connection with the Dominion's plans for reconstruction in the years following the war. As in many other branches of public service, it is apparent that education in Canada could be developed to more fully meet the needs of the present day, and at the Canada-Newfoundland Education Association meetings these matters were studied.

Wartime Needs Have Been Met

Educational needs of the country in wartime have been met by special provisions in the schools and universities in Canada. The Youth Training Plan, which has been carried on so effectively in the western provinces, has provided training for large numbers of technicians for the armed forces, munition plants, and other branches of war work. A great many men of the Royal Canadian Navy, The Royal Canadian Air Force, and the Army are also receiving technical training in Canadian universities. There are many questions of finance, of the adjustment of salary levels for teachers, of the creation of larger school units, and of a broadening of the curriculum, which should be given consideration now by all thinking people here. Education is a fundamental factor in the shaping of the life of the nation, and as it is improved, many of our present social and economic problems will disappear.

SMILE AWHILE

He—Say, who is that funny-looking fellow who drives your car and works around in the garden? He always frowns at me whenever he sees me here.

She—Oh, don't mind him. That's only father.

"You can get anything at a mall-order house," remarked the lady next door.

"Everything, alas, but a male," sighed the spinster.

"Please, sir, I don't like the soup, sir."

"Nonsense!" said the officer briskly. "That soup is good for you. It's full of vitamins."

"There!" said the next private in a triumphant whisper. "I told you they wasn't flies!"

A gentleman from Utah once lured Mark Twain into an argument concerning polygamy, belaboring the humorist with long and tedious exposition in favor of plural marriages. Mark strove valiantly to beat down the claims of his adversary, but with little success. Finally the man challenged Twain to cite some passage of Scripture expressly forbidding polygamy.

"Certainly," replied the humorist. "No man can serve two masters."

"Walter, it's almost an hour since I ordered that turtle soup."

"Sorry, sir, but you know how slow turtles are."

Mistress—Mark, how is it the eggs are sometimes boiled soft and sometimes quite hard?

Mary—Well, mum, I'm sure I don't know. I put them in regular as the clock strikes eight, and I takes them out without fail when I hear the down train go by.

Him: "Well, I suppose you're plenty angry because I came home with this black eye last night."

Her (sweetly): "Not at all, dear. You may not remember it, but when you came home you didn't have that black eye."

The head of the house was reading a newspaper article very carefully. Presently he remarked to his wife: "Do you know, dear, I think there is something in what this article says—that the cleverness of the father often proves a stumbling-block to the son."

His wife heaved a sigh of relief. "Well, thank goodness," she said, "our Bobby won't have anything to fall over."

The Art Of Forgetting

Try And Remember Only The Good Points Of Your Friends

If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbor's faults, forget the slanders you have heard, forget the temptations, forget the fault-finding, and give little thought to the cause that provoked it, forget the peculiarities of your friends, and only remember the good points that make you fond of them; forget all personal quarrels and histories, which you may have heard by accident, and which if repeated, would seem a thousand times worse than they are; blot out as far as possible all the disagreeables of life. They will come and will grow larger as you remember them, and constant thought of acts of meanness or worse still, malice, will only tend to make you more familiar with them. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday. Begin with a clean slate for today, and write upon it, for sweet memory's sake, only those things that are lovely and lovable.—Exchange.

CHAPTER VII

ESTEBAN strode from the room and returned a moment later carrying the black whip that was part of his gaucho outfit. To Pancho made a grunting sound and aggressive, standing, and even whirled Morgan nodded to himself. Already he had seen that bullwhip become a deadly thing in the hand of Esteban Velasquez.

"Esteban!" With a startled cry, Rosita gripped her brother's arm. "You are not—?"

"Yes, my dear," smiled Esteban. "It is either that or remain here until Captain Rojas comes to arrest me."

"But—" She continued to cling to him. "Verde has a gun, and a shout will bring Don Felix from the other side—"

He patted her shoulder and disengaged his arm. "Do not be worried, Rosita. You have seen me use this whip every night. Surely the skill I have acquired to amuse others will not fall me in our hour of desperation."

Esteban was the first to crawl through the window. Morgan and Pancho helped Rosita to reach the ground. When all four were crowded between the walls of the two buildings, Esteban, the whip wrapped loosely around its own stock, tiptoed down the passage, moving slowly to allow the others to keep close to him and also in order that neither Verde nor Guillermo should become aware of this flank attack.

The opening of the passage appeared, a dull gray patch in the gloom. Esteban's hand brushed Morgan's sleeve in warning, and the American slowed to a stop, halting Rosita and Pancho in turn as the couple came abreast of him.

Esteban had not paused. His next step carried him out of the protecting darkness, and his measured gait became a glide.

IN THE semi-darkness the figure of Esteban dissolved into a blur. At the far corner of the house a blob of shadow stirred to become a similar nebulous shape. Raymond Verde had become aware of Esteban's presence in the alley.

Suddenly the arm of Verde straightened. "Halt!" he commanded, his leveled pistol gleaming dimly.

Esteban's dangling arm had moved also. But where Verde's arm had swept in an arc, the hand of Esteban simply moved forward and back, like a jolted pendulum.

Because of the distance and the darkness, Morgan was unable to follow the course of the activated bullwhip. But almost before Esteban's jerking hand had stilled, there sounded a sharp report. Verde jumped and the crack of the whip was followed by a shrill scream.

"Dios mio!" Verde sagged, clapping his hands to his face. The gun clattered on the stones and the fat man turned to run brokenly.

Again the whip sang and smarted. Esteban braced himself like a cowboy about to throw a roped steer; the heaving body of Verde seemed to halt in midair, then flopped backward heavily to the ground.

Then Morgan and Pancho arrived on the scene of action. To Pounced on the struggling Verde to allow Esteban no slacken the tightened whip. Morgan grabbed up the fallen pistol and faced the corner of the alley. Guillermo must have heard the cries of Verde.

Verde's hands were still clasped against his face as he was hauled to his feet. "Nombre de Dios," he kept mumbling, "you have blinded me—"

"No, señor," said Esteban. "I did not touch your eyes. I merely split your cheek open to the bone."

GINGERLY Verde lowered his hands and blinked at his blood-smeared palms. An expression of relief crossed his face at this evidence that his eyesight was unimpaired. Esteban did not remove the lash from about the prisoner's throat; as he once had done with Morgan he leaped the whip around Verde, binding the man securely as though he had used a rope.

"Get Guillermo," he urged Morgan and Pancho. "Rosita and I can take care of this fellow. If we can get away in the car with the two of them we can keep them from causing more trouble until we figure out some way of proving their villainies."

To Pancho pounded behind Morgan, gripping the remnants of his broken knife. The two were half-way up the alley when a beam of light, flashing through the street ahead, dipped in and out of the alley. Morgan slid to a halt in time to avoid being revealed in the brief glare. At the same time he caught the sound of motors and grinding brakes. Capt. Rojas had arrived.

Pancho gripped the American's sleeves. "Come back, señor," he advised. "We are too late."

They heard the front door being kicked open; a car door slammed, followed by the grinding of brakes. Morgan whistled, breaking into a run to get out of the alley before the car headlights swept through it again. He and Pancho rounded the corner at full speed.

"Get out of sight!" Morgan cried to Rosita and Esteban. They are driving into these alleys to hunt us!"

They did not have time to run the length of the valley, short as it was. The searching car, Morgan could tell by the sound, was already at the corner before he had taken a dozen strides.

Before Morgan was the dark passageway between the houses, the cul-de-sac into which they had crawled. Pancho's whisper in the dark pocket in which they would be trapped if seen, but they had no choice. If they remained in the open in front of the house they would be caught by the lights of the police car. Morgan darted into the dark aperture, the headlights fluted in after him.

The headlights swept over the cobblestones, almost catching the leg of Esteban. Rosita flattened herself against one of the walls, as did Esteban and Pancho. But Morgan remained at the mouth of the passage, lifting the gun he still held in his hand.

"NO, SENOR!" Esteban whispered hoarsely. "Not this! If we shoot the police, that will make us criminals indeed!"

"I shall kill no one," Morgan replied earnestly, "unless Guillermo is in that car directing the search. Keep Verde quiet. We may be able to get out of this yet."

The cars loaded with men, flashed past the hiding-place. Morgan's lifted arm steeled and he pulled the trigger. The sound of the shot was followed by an even louder bang. Morgan had aimed at one of the moving wheels, and his bullet had sliced through the tire like a machete.

The car whirled in the grip of the unexpected blowout. As Morgan had hoped there was no room in the narrow alleyway for the driver to maneuver the rocking, twisting vehicle.

The headlights danced crazily from side to side as the driver fought to maintain equilibrium. All at once there came a resounding crash, and the street was plunged once more into darkness.

The car was tilted on two wheels, buried half its length into the hole it had created in the masonry. "Come!" Morgan cried, leaping out of the passage. "Now is our chance to get away!"

But Morgan took only one step in the direction opposite the overturned car. To Pancho caught his arm.

"Let me lead the way," Pancho said eagerly. "No one in Buenos Aires knows the Boca as well as I. Once I get you out of sight, Rojas and Guillermo will never find us."

They left Verde, wrapped securely in the coils of the whip, seated on the ground. The American and Pancho moved swiftly. He bent low to dart unseen around the tonneau of the police car, then followed the alley long enough to circle the brick building that towered over his humble cottage. Here, Pancho ducked into another abyssal pocket, squirmed through and the fugitives were on a second of the waterfront's dismal thoroughfare. Had Morgan stood still and closed his eyes until the count of 10, he would never have located his companions again, so twisted was the labyrinth through which Pancho was leading them in an effort to throw Rojas and Guillermo off the trail.

Navy Divers Valuable

Have Furnished United Nations With Information About Enemy Subs

Important to the war but virtually unused are the navy divers, men who proved their value during the African campaign.

They are responsible for getting many of the secrets which the United Nations have learned about enemy submarines.

Just as soon as a signal, "enemy submarine sunk, latitude 111, longitude . . ." is received, a naval tender steams to the position. A helmeted diver goes over the side.

Later, sometimes as much as two hours, he returns to the surface with such things as the U-boat's log and secret documents which occasionally reveal valuable information. Possession of a new code book, for instance, can mean a chance to intercept enemy orders.

This latter fact underlines the reasons for the navy's reluctance to publicize any submarine "kill" until some time after the event.

During the African campaign several cargo ships and transports were sunk. British and American navy divers were rushed into action, some of them being flown from the United States. They worked day and night recovering drums of fuel, sealed containers of food and tanks and guns. In one case almost an entire cargo of manganese was retrieved.

Has Luxurious Home

Norwegian Fascist Leader Employs Retinue Of Servants In Mansion

A palatial home, unparalleled in Norway for its luxuriousness, has been built outside Oslo by Vidkun Quisling, notorious Norwegian Fascist leader. He took over a fine old mansion, extended and renovated it, and at heavy cost installed bathing and tea pavilions and bomb-proof underground suite rooms with ceilings of concrete 12 feet thick and further layers of sand.

Quisling now has a retinue of 50 servants, 40 of whom are personal bodyguards armed with rifles and revolvers. Norwegians escaping to Britain say that trouble among members of the Quisling party spreads apace and attacks on Quisling followers are of daily occurrence.

HARD TO REGULATE

One fault, about food rationing, as we see it, says the Ottawa Citizen, is that the thing isn't based on "selective sacrifice." The thin man, who needs all the fat-producing provender he can put away, is on all fours with the stout fellow, who can get all the carbohydrates he requires on a diet of spinach and tap-water.

DOBBIN'S COBBLER

RUSH OF NEW BUSINESS for blacksmiths like Fred Fingal lately. "Been telling 'em for years to get a horse," chuckles Fred. "Maybe they'll believe me now." Nothing old fashioned about Fred's breakfast, though. Kellogg's Corn Flakes is his favorite. "Taste mighty good," he says. "The Mrs. likes 'em too. Says they only take 30 seconds to get ready, and no pots and pans to wash." You'll like Kellogg's Corn Flakes. Get some tomorrow. Two convenient sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Did Their Best

Repatriated Prisoners Reaching England Say Italians Treated

The joy of the men who have come home from Italian prisons has its pathetic side, little as they desire pity. One correspondent writes that the glum faces seen at the quayside tempted some to think they were not welcome; and they laughed aloud on discovering that the expression came of sadness for their impaired bodies. They themselves had forgotten disabilities in the gladness of being once more in England.

There is a touch of comedy in their disgust with the war-time macaroni of which they have had more than enough.

But the repatriated prisoners acknowledged that the Italians did the best they could for them. They are deeply appreciative of the goodness of the sisters of mercy in the camp hospitals. Their guards "sneaked" and all agreed that they had no desire to fight the British and hoped sincerely it would soon be over, while of German allies these guards "spoke no kind words."—London Times.

Superstitious Japs

American Airmen Gave Them Omen

Of Bad Luck

American forces on Attu plagued the Japanese with their maddened omen of bad luck.

American propagandists discovered that in Japan there is nothing more feared than the premature falling of the leaves of the kiri tree. All kinds of misfortune are supposed to befall any village where this occurs.

So propagandists arranged for many kiri leaves to fall on Attu.

The story came to light after Arthur W. Schuetz, naval aviation mechanic's mate back from the Aleutians, told in St. Louis how American fliers had dropped "maple leaves" on Attu.

The office of war information explained that it was not the maple leaf at all, but the kiri leaf.

The original Punch and Judy show was written in 1800.

South Alberta badly In Need of Rain

Southern Alberta enters a critical crop week today and the cry over a large wheat growing area is for rain. Light showers fell over the week end but what is wanted is a general, soaking rain. Unless this comes soon there is bound to be crop deterioration. Fortunately the weather has been cool which has eased the effects of the protracted dry weather.

Southern Alberta from the Pincher Creek country to the Montana boundary has had abundant moisture and the crop situation is excellent, but north, northeast and southeast districts need immediate rainfall. Sugar beets are being irrigated.

Your Income Tax....

MINISTER OF NATIONAL REVENUE
CANADA

FELLOW CANADIAN

I would like to remind the two million taxpayers of Canada of their obligation to file a 1942 Income Tax Return before the 30th of June.

This year, the forms have been simplified so that they can be completed with a minimum of time and effort.

The Income Tax dollars that Canadians pay are necessary in our present struggle. They are an investment in our future peace and security. They are fighting dollars.... Victory, dollars.

Income Tax is fair to all, as each person is taxed in accordance with his ability, to pay.

There is no easy way to win a war. Almost half the costs of this war must be paid by taxes. I know that the Income Tax is not a pleasant burden, but I also know that to win the war, Canadians are willing to fulfill their obligations.... to pay the price and to shoulder their responsibilities with the same unbeatable spirit as shown by those who have gone from our shores to fight.

Colin Gibson
Minister of National Revenue.

ALL INCOME TAX RETURNS MUST BE MADE BY JUNE 30th
